

Howard is President of the New York Center. He has been an active member of the Center since 1984. Howard holds a doctorate in Applied Psychology from New York University. He serves as adjunct faculty in the Department of Applied Psychology at NYU. He is a member of LGBT Study Group, William Alanson White Institute, and a Fellow of the A.K. Rice Institute. He served as the school psychologist at City-As-School High School for 17 years. Group relations perspectives inform the many facets of Howard's life, including his approach to working with individuals, couples, families and organizations. He maintains a private practice in Manhattan.

Mineko (Anne) Legendy is Vice-President of the New York Center. Anne has been an active member of the center since 2010. She teaches as adjunct faculty at NYU and works in the private practice, Upper West Psychology. In addition, she is a member of the A.K. Rice Institute for the Study of Social Systems. Anne received her doctorate in Applied Psychology from New York University and completed her postdoc at William Alanson White Institute. She has a B.A. from Brown University in Psychology and Art History.

A retired educator, Frank is the Treasurer of the New York Center and a member of the A.K. Rice Institute. As the former Director of Community Education at GMHC, he facilitated a variety of groups, including trainings for those interested in many different volunteer roles. Over the years, he has designed and led a variety of educational groups, classes, and weekend workshops (e.g., HeartCircleNYC and the annual Gay Men's Labor Day Retreat at Easton Mountain). Frank has an M.A. and Ph.D. in English Language and Literature from the University of Chicago.

"R.C." has a Master's Degree in Organizational Psychology from Teachers College, Columbia University, and a B.A. in Psychology from the University of Vermont. He is an Associate with the A.K. Rice Institute for the Study of Social Systems, and is serving as the Secretary of the New York Center for the Study of Groups, Organizations, and Social Systems. He is currently the Director of Learning and Development at mcgarrybowen.

Asha Gipson is a doctoral student at Teachers College, Columbia University, currently serving on the Executive Committee of the New York Center as Member-at-Large. Her interests include group/team dynamics and processes, organizational change, leadership development, and intersectionality. She is also an Adjunct Lecturer at Brooklyn College teaching a course on Group Dynamics & Leadership. In addition, she is a member of the A.K. Rice Institute for the Study of Social Systems and of the Organization Development Network of New York. Asha has an M.A. from Teachers College, Columbia University in Organizational Psychology and a B.A. from Pomona College in Psychology.